Andover, 4; Clans, 3.

The Clans met Andover on the local grounds last Saturday afternoon and were well beaten in the first round of the Marshall Cup ties. The final score was 4 to 3 against them, but this was no index of the play for Andover was easily the superior team. The game was poorly played and only the intense rivalry between the two teams made it interesting. There was a large attendance of spectators, the enclosure being well lined with supporters of the contending teams and there were many exciting controversies regarding the merits of the players and the decisions of the referee, P. J. Darcy, who on the whole refereed a good game, giving his decisions as he saw them. The Clans vigorously protested the awarding of a goal from a penalty by Skea, claiming that the ball had not crossed the line. On the other hand the second penalty against Andover was made possible by the deliberate fisting of the ball goalwards by Lister, half-back of the Clans, an infringement which escaped the vigilance of the referee, but was very visible from the sidelines. Jackson accidentally handled inside the restricted area and the penalty was the result. And the Clans were presented with a goal by Referee Darcy when he awarded a penalty for an infringement by Stirling. The penalty kick was originally intended to prevent deliberate harking and tripping of a player who might be in a position to score and also to prevent the defense (other than the goal-keeper) from fisting out a sure goal. Its infliction has been abused and the award Saturday was an abuse by Referee Darcy. So if he robbed the Clans of a goal as they claim, he also gave them one.

Both teams were strongly represented. Andover having Jackson of the Clans at left back and Coleman of the same team at left half, a poor policy, for neither can play in the league final, and Andover's own players should have been getting the practice. Rae was again in his old position and while showing the effects of his lack of training played a strong game.

The Clans had several new players, Butterworth of the South Lawrence team, Lister of the Light Blues, and Martin, a new arrival, being on the team. There was a lack of team work noticeable among the visitors and this was in marked contrast to Andover's snappy work in the first half. They failed to take advantage of their chances which were numerous, while Andover improved every opportunity so well that at the interval they led 4 goals to 1. From the scoring of the first goal, which was netted after about five minutes of play the home team held the upper hand and added three more goals, one each by Page, Stirling, and Skea, the latter from a penalty. The goal by Stirling was one of the finest ever scored on the local grounds. Standing on the touch-line, near midfield, he threw the ball against Skea, and on the return kicked it with excellent precision and distance, landing it in the net out of Munro's reach. The Clans' goal was the result of a fine individual run by Pete Cairnie who, outstripping the backs, had a clear field and easily beat McArdle.

The second half was not productive of much football but the Clans scored two goals as described above. McTavish took both kicks and McArdle never had a chance to save either one. Law put in a lot of unproductive work in this half and as in hockey played rover, being all over the field in an endeavor to get goals. Lister and Butterworth also played well, but the latter's misicks in the first period were partly responsible for Andover's goals. Munro, in goal, had a lot to do and saved brilliantly on several occasions, his almost successful attempt to save the protested penalty being a feature. For Andover Skea played a great game at outside left and sent in many fine shots. Deyermund contributed a lot of hard work at inside, although his shooting suffered because of his new position. Page was not as brilliant as usual. Both teams showed lack of training, due to the long lay off of the winter months.

The teams were as follows:

ANDOVER
McArdle, g. g. Munro
Rae, rb. lb. Butterworth
Jackson, lb. rb. Cargill
Stirling, lb. lb. Cuthbert
Downs, chb. chb. Haddon
Coleman, lb. lb. Lister
Deyermund, rof. rof. Law
Page, cf. cf. McTavish
Skea, lf. lf. cf. Martin
Gordon, lof. rof. McKay

Summary: Andover 4, Clans 3.
Goals: Deyermund, Page, Skea, Stirling, Cairnie, McTavish 2. Referee, Patrick G. Darcy; linesmen, John Wilkinson and John Ramsden. Time, 45-minute halves.

*Penalty goals.

The Clans protested the awarding of the penalty goal by Referee Darcy and the protest was considered by the Marshall Cup committee Wednesday evening. Secretary McBride of the Andover club declared that the protest should not be upheld and quoted Rule 13 of the football association:

"A referee shall be appointed whose duty it shall be to enforce the rules and his decisions on all points of fact connected with the game shall be final. The referee decides everything, the linesmen being his assistants, whose decisions he can over-ride." Rule 22 of the Marshall Cup tie committee states: "That the competition be governed by the rules of the football association."

The committee upheld the decision of Referee Darcy and dismissed the protest, refunding the money forfeit by the Clans.

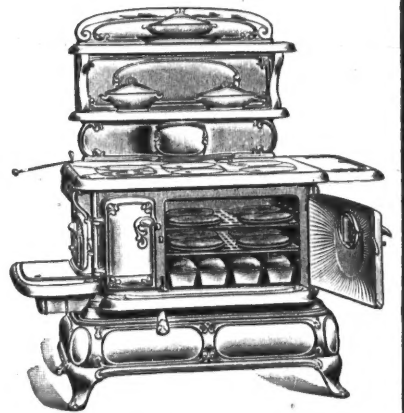

There is still some doubt as to the date for the final league game between the Blues and Andover. The date is now set as April 12, but the Marshall Cup committee is trying to have it postponed until April 26.

There was a lively scene in the village Sunday morning, caused by the running away of the horse attached to the wagon owned by Louis Belisle of West Parish. The horses came down Essex street and dashed into the high curbing protecting the culvert near McKenzie's store. Mr. Belisle and his hired man were in the wagon at the time but escaped with a few cuts, but the wagon was badly damaged. Mr. Belisle secured a team from the Park Street stables and was able to serve his customers.

wages, at current prices, for the boy himself and for any other members of the family who helped with the project, strict account of time being kept. The following is taken from the "New England Homestead" for February 22, 1913. "The highest net profit after the pupil had paid himself for his own labor, and had met all other expenses in connection with his home project, was made by Charles Stanley Bartlett, a pupil of the Smith School at Northampton. He handled twelve Jersey cows from November 7, 1911, to June 1, 1912. His profit was $270. In addition, he paid himself for labor $109, making his direct earnings for that period $379. Strict account was kept, covering every phase of his project. On graduating last June, Mr. Bartlett secured a position on a dairy farm in the eastern part of the state. He was sent west with some of the fine show animals, where he won a gold medal with his stock."

The article further quotes from Dr. Lenhart, the director who furnished inspiration and teaching for the Bartlett Jersey Herd's success. "In my work in feeds and feeding I have required, wherever possible, practical feeding experiments with some kind of live stock on the home-farm. It was somewhat difficult to get all the boys started, and Bartlett was one who failed to get his herd on a balanced ration. I argued with him and worked out the ration he was then feeding and proved to him that there was a very apparent misadjustment of the feed elements, and that a balanced ration of the same feeds could be used at less expense. I said to him, 'Show this to your father, and make it clear to him that he is wasting grain as surely by this method of feeding as though he would throw the grain into the yard by the shovel.' As a result he went to feeding a balanced ration and keeping records. These records at once showed him marked increase in production on a ration that was less expensive."

"There ought to be a great fund of inspiration in Mr. Bartlett's work, for other young men. He is just an ordinary country youth, who is industrious, and interested in dairy stock." Other examples could be quoted, showing earnings of other boys, some large, some small. A boy who takes two or three projects during the summer, as one boy in Hadley did, three hives of bees, twenty-five R. I. Red hens, and one acre of corn, would be sure to profit on one or two of the projects, if not on all. A boy in Northboro took for his project the cultivation of 128 square rods of sweet peas, and his total earnings amounted to $335.70.

An agricultural instructor, under the control of the agricultural department of the State Board of Education, is supposed to help the farmers, as well as the pupils. It is advisable, wherever possible, to have a room at the high school where the latest literature on all subjects agricultural shall be kept for the use of the community, and where farmers and others interested, can meet to talk over, discuss, and gain information on all questions which may arise on the individual farms.

A boy or girl who graduates from this agricultural course and receives a certificate, will be admitted to the State College of Agriculture at Amherst, without examination.

"THE STYMIE"—To be given by Harvard Pi Eta Club in Town Hall, Saturday evening, April 5.

"The Stymie" Saturday Night

Tomorrow evening is the date for the presentation of "The Stymie" by the Pi Eta society of Harvard, which is to take place in the town hall. The play is a musical comedy and the plot is dependent upon and developed with the progress of a tournament held by the Seven State Golf Association. The spendthrift yet virtuous hero, and the "villain" meet in the final round. On the result of this match, however, depends more than the mere winning of a championship. Ramola Carliot, the wealthy opera singer and Boston society belle, is the real prize to be won. The villain's crimes are discovered by Trevor, who threatens an exposure, but finally agrees to wait until the tournament has been won. This is finally accomplished by the shot from which the play takes its name. The blushing maiden is clasped in her hero's embrace and all is over. In his moment of triumph Trevor Graham can afford to be magnanimous to a conquered foe, and Billings Moncrief, escaping due punishment for his villainy, disappears as the curtain falls on the exciting scene. Trevor Graham, late of Wess Street, Ramola Framingham, an opera singer.

Sons of Veterans Meeting

Walter L. Raymond Camp, No. 111, Sons of Veterans, held its regular meeting last Friday evening. Commander G. W. Gilbert in the chair. One recruit was mustered in. Committees to see to the proper carrying out of the plans as outlined by the Camp for Memorial Day were appointed and confirmed. An invitation was extended to Garfield lodge, No. 172, Knights of Pythias, to act with the Camp as an escort to the G. A. R. on Memorial Day.

The following were elected to act as delegates to the annual Division Encampment to be held April 8 and 9, at the Quincy House, Boston: Cutter Foster and Wm. H. Pierce; alternates, Percival Dove and Chas. Damon.

The Camp was highly honored on this night by the presence of a Division officer, in the person of Senior Vice Commander Edward W. Eaton of Camp No. 109, Newburyport, who dropped in unannounced and quite unexpectedly. We were very glad of his assistance in mustering in the new recruit. We wish more of the brothers could have been present to see and hear this man. His remarks under the Good of the Order were entertaining, instructive, helpful and full of encouragement. Brother Eaton came a matter of sixty miles to attend this meeting; the Camp sincerely hopes that he derived as much pleasure and benefit from his visit as it did, and returned home feeling well repaid for his effort.

Attendance, six. Next meeting April 11, 1913.

Sale for Hospital Benefit

On Friday, April 18, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, there will be held in the November clubhouse a bakery sale for the benefit of the Lawrence General Hospital.

Contributions of any kind of cooked food, candy, salted nuts, preserved fruit, flowers, vegetables, eggs, or money will be gratefully received.

As has been explained before in the Townsman, there was a large deficit last year. A part of this has been promised, provided the remainder is raised.

At the Bakery held in the Lawrence city hall more than a thousand dollars was cleared, but several hundred more must be forthcoming before the gift is received. Let Andover come to the front and do her share.

The management of the Colonial theatre on Essex street has commenced the good work by offering to donate to the cause the entire proceeds of their afternoon and evening performances on April 17. This generosity on the part of the theatre is much appreciated and it is hoped that the performances will be largely patronized on that day.

Boston P. A. Alumni Meet

The Boston Alumni Association of Phillips Andover academy held its annual meeting and banquet Tuesday evening at the Boston City club, the after-dinner exercises consisting of three or four short addresses and several college songs. The attendance, about 120, was the largest the organization ever had at its annual gathering.

The chief guests were Prof. Charles H. Forbes, acting principal of the academy and Pres. A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and Brewster Eddy, '04. The president of the alumni, Desmond Fitzgerald, '03, was toastmaster.

Among the new officers elected were: Judge Marcus Morton, '79, president; Dr. William A. Mowry, '54, and W. B. Stevens, '61, vice presidents; Arthur Drinkwater, '06, secretary; F. Abbot Goodhue, '02, treasurer.

ObituaryDANIEL J. LEONARD

The funeral of Daniel J. Leonard who died at Fort Bayard, New Mexico, was held at St. Augustine's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock, when a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Frederick S. Riordan. At the offertory J. Wm. Mahoney rendered the "De Profundis," and Miss Annie Donovan played a funeral march as the body was being borne from the church.

The pall bearers were Frank Landers, Arthur Picot, Edward Powell and Edward Hannagan.

A firing squad from Company F, Lawrence, in command of William J. Landers, fired the customary salute at the graveside.

Burial was in the Holy Sepulchre cemetery, North Andover. The funeral took place from the home of his father-in-law, Peter Dugan, on Highland road.

Stores Burglarized

Presumably about four o'clock on Monday morning, burglars broke into the Andover Bookstore and also J. William Dean's on Main street. The former place was entered through the south window on Chestnut street, the lock being forced and broken in half. Few articles were missing, however, these including a diary, a wallet, and some pocket-knives.

Mr. Dean did not fare so well, for according to his estimate about $150 worth of clothing was taken, including a raincoat valued at $18, some sweaters, a dress suit case, ties, and other articles of wearing apparel. The store was entered through a back window.

The identity of the thieves is not known, and so far as can be learned no one heard any disturbance. The night watchman stated that everything was quiet in both stores at three o'clock when he made his rounds. The police are attempting to find the guilty parties.

Tenth Anniversary

The Helping Hand society of the Free church celebrated the tenth anniversary of its organization last Tuesday night by giving a supper and entertainment to the Ladies' Benevolent society and their gentlemen friends.

It proved to be one of the most delightful of the many Free church social gatherings of the season.

After the delicious and bountiful supper, the vice-president of the society gave a hearty welcome to the guests of the evening and left the meeting in the hands of the entertainment committee, who presented a program happily mingling the humorous and the serious in music, readings and remarks.

Contributions of "early day" songs and recitations given by some of the "old folk" (?) added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The genuine good fellowship of the evening was heartily voiced in the old hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," with which the program closed.

Boy Scout Helpfulness

Citizens who witnessed the demonstration of scouting activities in Washington during the festivities attending the inauguration of President Wilson are planning to present bronze medals to the boy scouts. They wish to give some token of their appreciation of the splendid work which the boy scouts did in giving first aid to ill persons, doing good turns to strangers, and above all in protecting the suffragettes from roughness and insults when the police were unable to keep back the throng.

More than 1500 scouts were on duty in Washington on March 3 and 4. They represented scout organizations in District of Columbia, Virginia, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, New Jersey and Maryland. The troops of boys were on duty in the Union Station on both the day before and the day of the inaugural. Other boys were stationed at various points along Pennsylvania avenue during the suffrage parade and also during the inaugural parade. They called ambulances, attended fainting and ill persons and were of great help to the persons in charge of the festivities.

BOY SCOUTS' RALLY SONG
(Tune: "Men of Harlech")

Ho ye scouts all true and loyal,
Haste ye to the battle royal;
See these boys, some young and tender,
They shall be strong men.
'Tis a fight for honest boyhood,
Right good sports and all-round manhood.
Cost it time, and thought and labor,
We will "Be prepared!"
Loose the folds asunder,
Flag we conquer under,
Our aims are high,
We forward fly
To make our country stronger.
Onward, 'tis our country needs us;
We will go where duty leads us;
Honor's self shines proudly through us:
Manhood, God and Right!

Died in Colorado

Mrs. Sarah Scott, a former resident of this town, and sister of Charles Jamieson of Argilla road, passed away last week in Colorado, death being due to blood poisoning. Mrs. Scott was born in Andover and lived here until her marriage at which time she removed to Lawrence and later to Worcester. She had been in the West but a short time previous to her death, but owing to the trouble in the middle west, it has not yet arrived here, and all attempts to locate it have been of no avail.

It was rather a peculiar coincidence that while Mr. Jamieson's sister lay dead, Mrs. Jamieson's brother, Alvin E. Towne of Lawrence, passed away after a three days' illness with ptomaine poisoning. Mr. Towne was a native of North Andover and burial was in that town on Monday afternoon.

Who in Andover Remembers "Master Adams"?

Not Principal John Adams of Phillips Academy, but Mr. Philip Doddridge Adams of "Newbury Old-town." A recent Newburyport newspaper contains the notice of his death in the one hundredth year of his age. He was a schoolmaster for forty years, and among the places where he served was "Andover, two years." In the order of the places on the list his sojourn in Andover would have been from 1865 to 1867, but in glancing over the annual school records of the town I do not find his name, although meeting other familiar names as teachers of that period. It may be that the newspaper notice does not give the record in chronological order, or—more likely—that he taught in the "North Parish." If in our Andover, there must be some elder readers who will remember him.

successful acting of the evening. Pretty, vivacious, fond of gaiety and luxury, quick of temper, easily influenced and still tenacious of principle, she acted as an excellent foil for Sir Peter. Her work in the fourth act when she was discovered behind the screen was excellent.

Much credit is likewise due to Percival Dove for his admirable representation of Sir Oliver, alias Mr. Premium, alias Mr. Stanley. Mr. Dove, both in make-up and acting, was extremely enjoyable, and his presentation of the elderly bachelor who has seen the world and understands it, but whose clearness of perception and justice are as keen as ever, was among the features connected with the performance which will not soon be forgotten.

A character in striking contrast to all the rest, both in dress and in manner, was Moses, the Jewish usurer, who made his first appearance in Act III. The part was taken by Nathan C. Hamblin in a very excellent manner, the cringing and obsequious yet watchful and avaricious air of the Israelite being brought out with much care and nicety.

Charles Surface, and his friends, Sir Harry Bumper, Careless and other gentlemen, are also introduced in Act III. Sir Harry and Careless, both of them young men of fashion, with much leisure and little money, were impersonated by B. Frank Michelson and W. Huston Lillard, and both did good work throughout the scene, the former singing the drinking song, and the latter being especially appreciated as the auctioneer.

The role of Charles was in the capable hands of Bartlett H. Hayes and was played with all the spirit of good-hearted generosity and carelessness which characterized that young man. Throughout the role, Mr. Hayes maintained this attitude with marked success, and dominating as he did nearly every scene in which he took part, must be counted among the most enjoyable of the various persons represented.

The other members of the cast were Trip, Charles's servant, played by Guy H. Eaton; Lady Sneerwell's man, Edward Sturgis; Joseph Surface's man, Earl Bryant; and Lady Teazle's maid, Miss Anne Coleman, all of whom added in no small way to the general effect of the play.

One of the most pleasing features of the evening was the costuming, which followed the style of the middle of the 18th century. Beautiful and artistic in the extreme, the stage filled with the members of the cast as the curtain was rung up at the end of the play was a sight seldom if ever before equalled in the town hall, and much praise is due all who took part for their universal success in manipulating trains, fans, snuffboxes and the other features of the 18th century costume.

The scene-shifting, of which there was considerable, was very excellently arranged, so that long waits were not necessitated. The Columbian orchestra played between the acts.

The cast was as follows:

Sir Peter Teazle A. B. LeBoutillier
Sir Oliver Surface Percival Dove
Joseph Surface Chas. T. Dole
Charles Surface Bartlett H. Hayes
Cairtree Perley F. Gilbert
Sir Benjamin Backbite W. Huston Lillard

Mrs. Candour Miss Agnes Park
Lady Sneerwell's man Edward Sturgis

Joseph Surface's man Earl Bryant
Lady Teazle's maid Miss Anne M. Coleman

A Deserved Tribute

The people of Christ Church were responsible for paying a well deserved tribute to their pastor for a quarter of a century, through the medium of the enjoyable reception held last evening in the parish house of Christ Church. Many townspeople not members of the parish joined with those who had arranged the affair, to pay a heartfelt tribute to Dr. and Mrs. Palmer upon this happy occasion. The generous gift presented to the principals was a substantial method which showed the appreciation of the parish for Dr. Palmer's long and faithful service, but we are inclined to think that, after all, the tributes most welcome to him were those which united in the many congratulations which were tendered, and the many expressions of kindly feeling which accompanied the congratulations.

Twenty-five years ago the impression which Andover made upon the visitor was very different from that which it produces today. Dr. Palmer came to the town when it possessed not a single one of the modern improvements that make most of the comforts of living from the present-day standard. During his pastorate at Christ Church he has seen established nearly every public service which now go to make up the advantages which the town offers outside of its natural charms. Better than this, however, he has seen a love for the particular natural advantages grow and develop so that they in turn have become more appealing than they were twenty-five years ago. He has seen the great educational institutions which are so prominent a factor of the town's life, increase in numbers and develop in material resources in a wonderful way. He has seen the manufacturing industries from which come many of the best people of the religious parishes of the town, increase in business and prosperity, so that today they are probably three times as large in their capacity for production as they were twenty-five years ago. A generation has passed in his review, and through his church in its different departments have come and gone many hundreds of people who have left their impress upon the life of the town because of their associations with him in the church activities where they have worked together. As a prominent factor in overseeing the activities at Pynchard, Dr. Palmer has been closely allied with the public educational life of the community, and his judgment, experience, and clear insight, have added a great deal to the efficiency of the Pynchard board during the past twenty-five years.

His parish has changed but little in numbers, but many of the older people who were there when he came have passed on to their reward. His public activities have been broad and serviceable. He has been interested in all that has been best for the town in its life and development. His judgment has seldom been at fault, and his counsel has been cordially welcome and very generally followed in dealing with the moral and social problems in which the clergymen of the town have been the natural leaders. Dr. Palmer has been a large factor in all of the life where better morals, better government, better character, have been at stake in the community. This would be expected from a clergyman, but it has been a larger service coming from the natural instincts of the man to help others to live the right thing. When this has been coupled with the call to duty laid upon him because he was a clergyman, it is easy to see what fine service it has been in his power to render in all these years of activity.

May there be a golden anniversary for Dr. and Mrs. Palmer, to mark another quarter century in Andover's life.

Pynchard and Agriculture

The article published elsewhere upon the subject of establishing an agricultural department in connection with Pynchard is worthy of very careful reading, not only because it is interesting in itself, but because it is, in a way, the expression of thoughtful, earnest members of one of the town's most important local organizations. There are many men who do not believe in woman's suffrage, who could take pattern very wisely, so far as giving thought and study to important problems, from some of the women's organizations in the town of Andover, and this is particularly true of the November Club and its many-sided activities, and its many forms of real public service.

In pursuit of its different kinds of activity, it has taken up this year, among other important questions, the agricultural situation in the state, and how it has been developed with relation to educating young people to become scientific, practical and successful farmers. The article does not attempt to direct or lead in any way, other than by the suggestion that is made by presenting the facts of what has been accomplished, and what promise there is in this movement as it has been worked out in other communities. It is worth reading, and, having read it, should lead the citizens of Andover, with the Pynchard problem so prominently before them, to think very seriously whether or not there are probabilities for a development for Pynchard along these particular lines in connection with other kinds of development that must come to make of the school the sort of help for the community which it ought to be.

The Barnstormers

The Barnstormers placed the community deeply in their debt again by their excellent presentation of "The School for Scandal" in the Town Hall last Tuesday evening. A more lengthy review elsewhere touches upon the important features of the performance, but the writer of this column cannot refrain from expressing in just a few words the satisfaction which friends of the performers have in the very excellent work which marked all of the different parts. Few people realize what an enormous amount of work was involved in preparing for the short time taken up with the play itself in its final presentation, and while we sometimes feel that this work ought to have a larger opportunity for expression in its final result, and the writer has erred in suggesting that at previous times, it has been a pleasure to see that the contention made by one of the most important members of the Barnstormers is being proven more and more true with each succeeding performance; the contention that, after all, the greatest good comes to the performers themselves. As has been the case with each performance given, to much of the efficient, quiet work which had gone before should be credited a good share of the success. The painting of the scenery, the designing of the costumes, the planning for all of the little details which are so essential to a successful presentation of the play, are looked after in these different performances by the Barnstormers so carefully and effectively, that they have probably more to do with the success on the closing night than even the acting by the different players themselves. As has been expressed in this column before, congratulations are due, and the thanks of the community are also due, to the officials and the members of this organization, who seem to be another established institution in the work of giving pleasure to the people of Andover.

Editorial Cinders

Governor Foss doesn't always please newspaper writers, and we presume there are many who won't be satisfied with what he has done at the present time in connection with the revision of the tariff, but we cannot help feeling that he has made of himself a good deal more of a citizen, without any reference to political considerations, by his latest stand on the tariff than almost any other official act performed by him has accomplished during the past few years. We don't know whether it will cut him free from the Democratic party or not, and that is of very little importance. As the chief executive of the Commonwealth, he has risen to protest against a tariff schedule formed by the party of which he is a prominent member, which he believes would injure very seriously the industries of the state. This is patriotism, and it is a pleasure to commend him for it, and to trust that the courage as shown may be only the beginning of a campaign by him and many others to preserve the business of New England.

To a man who observed his 50th anniversary, the twenty-five years marking one of the important events of last evening, is not so long a time after all. The quiet observance of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Vennard brings many congratulations that could not be uttered by the almost countless friends that these two good people have among the citizens of Andover. Mr. Vennard has held a unique position for many of these fifty years, and few men by their patient, interested service, in public ways, in church activities, and in the manner in which they have touched the people of the town, have gained a larger place in the affections of their fellow-citizens than has he. May there still be years of comfort and happiness for Mr. Vennard and his wife.

SUCCESSFUL PRESENTATION

Barnstormers do Excellent Work in "School for Scandal" Before a Large Audience

"There is nothing in the world so noble as a man of sentiment." So spoke Sir Peter Teazle, struggling against the surrounding chain of circumstances, forged by malicious tongues, but still a victim of the hypocritical and cleverly concealed connivance of Mr. Surface.

"Never let me hear you utter anything like a sentiment; I have had enough of them to serve me the rest of my life," was his later ejaculation, when realizing the power and harmful accomplishments of the "scandalous college," he was rejoicing in the overthrow of its members.

The occasion was the presentation of "The School for Scandal," by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, given by the Barnstormers in the town hall last Tuesday night. The play was the second in the season's series and, like its predecessors, was attended by an audience which completely filled the hall and gallery.

The presentation of Sheridan's comedy was no small undertaking for the Barnstormers, as the slow action and great abundance of dialogue which characterizes practically all the dramatic works of the 18th century necessitates considerable skill in the portrayal of the various roles, and no slight amount of quickness and alertness in repartee, with sufficient emphasis to produce correct shading, in order to save the whole from dullness and general lack of interest. "The School for Scandal" is brilliant and witty so far as the lines themselves are concerned, full of humor and with not a few touches of sarcasm and railery at the failings of mankind, but it is so contrasted to the modern play, that the modern audience finds it difficult work to fully appreciate it unless presented with unusual care.

This last requisite, however, was forthcoming on Tuesday night in the sympathetic management and arrangements of H. Winthrop Peirce, aided by the efficient cast, and the audience followed the five acts of the play with great interest.

It is quite unnecessary to outline the story of the play which has now become a classic in dramatic literature, or describe the gatherings of the gossips and trouble-makers, the plots of Lady Sneerwell and Joseph Surface, "the man of sentiment," the love of Maria and Charles Surface, the spendthrift; the quarrel and reconciliation of Sir Peter and Lady Teazle; the advent of Sir Oliver, and the other events which make up Sheridan's well-known comedy.

The selection of the cast was an admirable one, and excellent interpretations of his or her role were given by each member of it. Following the order in which the various characters appeared they were cast as follows:

The part of Lady Sneerwell was taken by Mrs. N. E. Bartlett, who very satisfactorily portrayed the role of that accomplished and uncompromising distributor of scandal, the "president of the scandal college," with a careful emphasis of "the delicacy of tint and mellowness of sneer" attributed to her ladyship by Mr. Snake.

The latter, whose part was played by B. Frank Michelson, appeared, as was intended, the quiet, slow-spoken, flattering, money-bought assistant in scandal cultivation.

The role of Mr. Joseph Surface was very capably handled by Charles F. Dole, who, with great success presented the model young man, who had no enemies, who was above reproach, who was of benevolent disposition, but who, to counteract it all, was a hypocrite of no ordinary calibre. His scene with the gossips in the opening acts, and his seeming endorsement of the views of everyone present to still further complete his work of self-aggrandizement, his rendezvous with Lady Teazle, his meetings with Sir Oliver which proved to be his undoing, and his final chagrin and cowardly fear, were all finely brought out by Mr. Dole.

Mrs. Bartlett H. Hayes played the role of Maria very pleasingly, her earnest disapproval of scandalous gossip and her faithfulness to her lover through his period of seeming worthlessness being in delightful contrast to the attitude of her associates.

Mrs. Candour, with her belief that "tale-bearers are as bad as the tale-makers," but with her remarkable inability to keep from belonging to the former aggregation, and in fact her burning desire to possess the information necessary so that she might belong to that body, was played by Miss Agnes Park with great success. Her setting forth of the contradiction in Mrs. Candour's nature whereby she attempted to conceal her love for gossip by a protestation of her hatred for it was very amusing.

Crabtree and his nephew, Sir Benjamin Backbite, the former an inconsequential and fashionable idler, the latter a young fop with a bent towards verse-making, if it might be called verse, and both of them prominent members of the "school," were well represented by Percy F. Gilbert and W. Huston Lillard.

Scene II of Act I introduced Sir Peter Teazle and Rowley, the latter part taken by Roy E. Hardy. A. B. LeBoutillier appeared as the hot-headed and choleric Sir Peter, affording the audience much pleasure in his work throughout the play. Among the most enjoyable bits of his acting was his scene with Lady Teazle in which his sudden shifts from the aggrieved and much tried husband of the woman of fashion, country-born, to the rich and indulgent lord filled with pride and admiration for his girl bride, and then to the flouted and worsted benefactor, were made with rare skill.

Observed Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Vennard quietly observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home on Central street last night, with a gathering of a few relatives. Although the occasion was so simply and quietly celebrated, the well-known couple were remembered by many of their friends with offerings of flowers and other gifts. Among the latter was the sum of fifty dollars, one for each of the fifty years of their married life.

At the meeting at the South church on Wednesday evening, Mr. Vennard was called in from his sexton's room, and Mr. Bigelow, the acting pastor, in a felicitous way gave him the congratulations of the church and parish. He then produced a small box, into which he dropped an even dozen of gold coins, apparently half-eagles, and handed it to the sexton, as a token of his faithful and painstaking service for so many years. Mr. Vennard briefly expressed his sincere thanks, and all present gave him hearty handshakes as they passed out.

Mr. and Mrs. Vennard were married in North Andover on April 3, 1862, and one child, who died at the age of 1 year and 9 months, was the result of this union. At the time of his marriage Mr. Vennard was in the employ of the Davis & Furber Machine Co., of North Andover, where for several years he gave faithful service.

He and his wife came to Andover about forty years ago and ten years later he entered upon his duties as sexton of the South church, where his honest and conscientious work is recognized by all who know him. During his residence in Andover both he and Mrs. Vennard have made a host of friends who join in wishing them a continuance of health and happiness.

ANNIVERSARY RECEPTION

Christ Church Parish Honors Dr. Palmer at Close of Twenty-five Years Rectorship.

Thursday evening marked an interesting and important event in the annals of Christ church, it being the celebration of Dr. Palmer's 25th anniversary as rector of the church. The affair took the form of a reception tendered by the parish to Dr. and Mrs. Palmer, at which there was a large gathering, not only of members of the church but also of other townspeople who were glad of an opportunity to express their congratulations to the rector on his successful work of the past quarter century.

The guests were received by Dr. and Mrs. Palmer in the attractively decorated parish house, amid a profusion of flowers and greenery. The wardens and vestrymen, assisted by several other members of the church, acted as ushers; punch was served under the direction of Miss Humphreys who had the assistance of a corps of young ladies. Other light refreshments were also served. Music was furnished by the Columbian orchestra of Lawrence.

During the evening C. J. R. Humphreys, senior warden, presented Dr. Palmer with a sum of gold enclosed in a silver purse, the latter to be given to Mrs. Palmer. The contents of the purse, amounting to $250, was the gift of the members of the church.

Letters of felicitation were read from Rev. Philo W. Sprague and Bishop William Lawrence, the latter sending the following congratulatory message:

Diocese of Massachusetts
Office of the Bishop

March 24, 1913

Mr. C. J. R. Humphreys,
Senior Warden,
Christ Church, Andover.

My dear Mr. Humphreys:—

In declining the kind invitation to the reception to Dr. and Mrs. Palmer, which I am sorry to be obliged to do, I cannot help sending this word of congratulation to the Parish as well as to the Rector and his wife upon the twenty-five years of such happy and helpful work and worship as you have all enjoyed together.

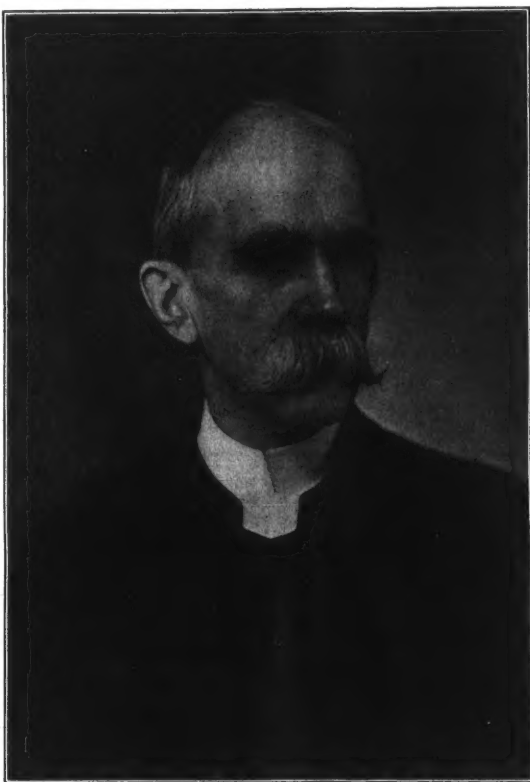

Andover and its traditions stand unique in this country. Christ church has been fortunate in having a pastor so sympathetic with the interests and life upon the hill, so public-spirited in relation to the whole community, and so faithful in his devotion to the work of the Church. By their hospitality and kindness Dr. and Mrs. Palmer have made the Rectory what a Rectory should be.

With renewed congratulations,

I remain,

Yours faithfully,

WM. LAWRENCE

REV. FREDERIC PALMER, D.D.
Rector Christ Church 1888-1913

The following committees were in charge of the event: Invitations, Mrs. H. H. Tyer, Dr. A. E. Hulme; reception, Mrs. M. A. Baldwin, A. B. LeBoutillier.

Dr. Palmer was born in Boston, August 6, 1848, the son of Julius A. mer. He was graduated from Phillips Andover Academy in 1865, and from and Lucy Manning (Peabody) Pal-Harvard in 1869, receiving his degree of A. M. from that institution in 1872. Entering the Andover Theological Seminary he received his diploma in 1872, and was ordained to the ministry two years later.

In 1882, he became the editor of "The Episcopal Register," and "The Church" in Philadelphia, which position he held for four years. Two years later, together with his wife, who was formerly Miss Mary Towle of Brookline, and whom he married in 1877, he came to Andover to become rector of Christ church. Since that time he has united his church activities with much literary work, publishing among other books, "Studies in Theologic Definition," 1895, "The Drama of the Apocalypse," 1903, "The Winning of Immortality," 1910. From 1896 to 1899 he was associate editor of "The Church," Boston, and he has also written several articles on religious subjects. In his literary work he has been ably assisted by Mrs. Palmer, their latest book being a volume of poems, published last year.

In 1910 Dr. Palmer received his degree of Doctor of Divinity from Harvard University. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and of the Clericus Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Palmer have one son, Frederic Palmer, Jr., who is dean of Haverford College.

Reading by Mr. Alfred Noyes

On the evening of April 2 in the Phillips Academy Chapel a large audience listened with delight to readings by Mr. Alfred Noyes from his own poetry. Mr. Noyes made a happy and varied selection from his work, and his rich sympathetic voice, with its fine sense of lyric and dramatic effect, brought out to advantage the swinging melody of his verses. Some of the poems were old favorites; others were less familiar, one, at least, being still unpublished; but all were distinguished by the romantic spirit and the robust sanity which critics have come to expect in Mr. Noyes's writings.

He began with the vivid "Admiral's Ghost," and followed with the oriental fantasy "Forty Singing Seamen." Next came "The Barrel Organ," with its haunting refrains and its discovery of romance in the commonplace. Mr. Noyes then gave one of his recently printed "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern," the story of "Will Kemp," which he himself considers his most brilliant achievement. "The Soul of Man," a reply to current materialistic philosophy, was followed by the grim "Red of the Dawn" and the reminiscent "Oxford Revisited." In conclusion Mr. Noyes recited his vigorous ballad tragedy, "The Highwayman." Mr. Noyes made a decidedly pleasant impression upon Andover people, and his next visit on April 26 will be awaited eagerly by those who heard him last Wednesday.

Punchard 1912 Reunion

The class of 1912 of the Punchard School held a very pleasant reunion at the home of Miss Eva Eaton on Avon street on Tuesday evening of this week. All the members of the class save one, Miss Jennie Nugent who is away at school, were present, and a jolly good time was the result.

While not principally planned with a view to April fool stunts, nevertheless from the fact that the event happened to take place on All Fools' Day, numerous pranks and jokes were in order, and this added considerably to the pleasure of the evening. Games of various kinds were also enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostess.

The guests present were Misses Margaret Barrett, Louise Greenwood, Gertrude Morgan, Helen Hardy, Helen Holt, Elizabeth Dick, Katherine McNally, Mabel Marshall, Clifford Dunnells, Frank Petty, Stephen Boland, William Haigh, and Miss Edna G. Chapin, Miss Elizabeth M. Loftus, Miss Caroline M. Davis and Eugene V. Lovely of the Punchard faculty.

PUNCHARD AND AGRICULTURE

Interesting and Suggestive Article on the Possibilities of Punchard

[The following article is adapted from a recent paper presented to the social science department of the November club. It is written by a Punchard graduate who has a great deal of interest in the school and who wishes only the best for the school. The department itself is very much interested in the problem, not only of Punchard but of all vocational education, and the purpose of the article, as well as the careful study given to the subject by many of the prominent ladies of the town during the past winter, makes this a live topic at the present time.—Ed.]

The time has come for the citizens of Andover, especially fathers and mothers of children of high school age and younger, to be thinking about conditions at our local high school. Boys and girls who are going to college, attend the preparatory schools; thus, most of the pupils who graduate from Punchard have finished their education, except, perhaps, a few who will attend a normal school for two years. But what is a boy fitted for when he is graduated from Punchard High School? No matter what branch of work he may follow, he will have to attend a trade school, a business school, or begin as an apprentice at the very foot of the ladder. In many cases, he doesn't even know what he would like to do, or what he can do best.

That some changes will have to be made in the present building, is admitted by all who know conditions there, some even believing it necessary to have an entirely new building. In other towns in the state, vocational schools are being established in connection with the local high school, with great success. These vocational schools teach all kinds of specialized education, and aim to fit for useful occupation. There are three departments in a true vocational school, agriculture, domestic arts, and mechanic arts. Most high schools are taking the agricultural department only, to begin with. Most people know in a general way what subjects are taught in the domestic and mechanical departments, but few people in Andover know to what an extent the agricultural training and education have been developed in the state, and this article is to try to tell them.

The different states all over the country are adopting the agricultural vocational school, in many different ways, but all with the idea of teaching agriculture in a scientific and practical way. Massachusetts has adopted the plan of part-time work on the home farm, in close connection with the class-room instruction by a regular agricultural instructor, or supervisor. In this way, a boy who is taught theoretically at school, how to take care of the poultry, or run the family vegetable garden, or to milk and care for the cows, puts into practice on his father's farm all of these scientific, economical and up-to-date methods. The supervisor not only teaches at the school, but goes about from farm to farm, to see that each pupil is doing the work according to the methods taught. He is at work during the entire summer taking his vacation in the winter, and the boys who take this course not only have the class-room and laboratory instruction with the class, but also the individual oversight of the instructor at his own home. The agent of the agricultural department of the State Board of Education personally visits each boy once a month during the summer, besides.

In towns where this course has been established, the plan has worked most successfully, most of the boys earning several dollars from their farm projects, while they are still learning about them. In connection with their projects, the boys must keep a strict account of all their expenses, as well as their income. A few of the regular high school studies must be taken in connection with this course, as history, science, usually

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Donald Gordon and Sir James Coats

A Scottish newspaper of last month noticed the death of Donald Gordon, the shepherd who for fifty years looked after sheep in Glen Muick, Aberdeenshire. He never had four dollars a week, or to be exact, the highest wages he ever had was fifteen shillings or $3.75. When he died he left just $40,000.

Impossible! How did Donald manage to do that? Well, he never spent any money that he could help, and after he had a nestegg he judiciously invested his little savings, and interest and compound interest made the little snowball grow big as time went on. Donald never was much at school, yet he could read and write and when he wrote a letter he could say a great deal in few words, quite unlike the letters our high school boys write. Donald never finished a letter by saying, "Hopping this letter will reach you safely I am yours truly," etc.

The Gordons are a proud Highland clan and Donald always wore a Gordon tartan kilt and said that when Noah built the ark the Gordons had a boat of their own!

A few years before his death, Donald bought a farm because land was a safe investment and could not run away. When he went to the auction of this farm, twenty-two miles from Glen Muick, he walked all the way and back (forty-four miles) and when he was eating his supper, porridge and milk, said that he had bought a bit of land and was sorry that he would soon leave so good a master.

Donald never married, his reason being that if he did so, he would have to serve two masters which the Scripture says is an impossibility!

Two nephews of this old Gordon inherited $20,000 each, and Donald will return to "Lochaber no more," and sleeps beside his fathers, the beautiful clear river Dee singing his lullaby as it runs over the clear gravel of the "Sands o' Dee."

In these days of genteel sentimentality when the cry of inhumanity is raised because young persons fourteen years of age at our factories earn only five dollars a week, this account of Donald Gordon I give for what it teaches. May we all learn to enjoy life without imitating the ostentatious newly-made rich.

Sir James Coats, the head of the largest thread-making firm in the world, died at Carrick house, Ayr, last month, aged seventy-nine. Queen Victoria put the handle to his name, not because he had grown rich by making sewing thread, but because he took a keen interest in the welfare of the workers employed in the mills at Paisley. Sir James gave a playstead to his native town and various costly gifts. The mills and their surroundings are models of taste and the work-people have every opportunity of keeping their bodies and minds clean if they wish to do so.

Shakespeare speaks about "the schoolboy with his shining face and satchel creeping like snail unwillingly to school." This reference to the satchel is not appreciated in this country as much as in Britain. The satchel was to a Scottish schoolboy almost an indispensable article. It was made of soft brown leather and had straps for fixing the satchel on one's back like a soldier's knapsack. As at that time, and even today, lessons are gone over at home, this satchel carried the school books. I give all this explanation because Sir James Coats a few years ago gave every boy in Scotland a satchel to carry his books in if his teacher signed a request for a satchel. Another thing Sir James enjoyed doing was to send a library of books to any village where there was no public library. Although Sir James was a hundred times as rich as Donald Gordon he put on no aristocratic airs and even to the last was just Jamie Coats.

The history of this firm of thread-makers is just like the history of many big concerns all over the world. Beginning with a man who had saved a few dollars, in a very small way, the thread made by the Coatses is used almost in every household for sewing.

Whenever tariffs were raised the Coats Company followed the tariff by putting down a large plant to make thread in this country, and near Providence they employ several thousand people. They did the same thing when Germany put on what Roosevelt calls a scientific tariff, and their thread continues to be the favorite sewing-thread of every housewife who plies the needle.

I spoke in my last week's letter about the old blacksmith, the great bridge-builder, Sir William Arrol, as dying in Ayr—

"Ayr which ne'er a town surpasses
For honest men and bonnie lasses."
Sir James Coats died at Carrick house, Ayr. Many rich men have since Burns's day put up grand houses in Ayr, as it is sheltered from cold east winds and of easy access to Glasgow or Edinburgh. My motive in writing about Sir James Coats, Sir William Arrol and last though not least, Donald Gordon, is simply to show that our country has no monopoly of men who make their mark.

MEMORIAL HALL LIBRARY

New Books Added in March
AGEE. CROPS AND METHODS FOR SOIL IMPROVEMENT.

Excellent popular work from the viewpoint of the man who wants practical cash compensation for the intelligent care he gives to his land. Pronounced by an expert "One of the best books in the language either for the farmer or the city-living farm-owner who is undertaking to improve his land."

—631 A26
BEGGIE. ORDINARY MAN AND THE EXTRAORDINARY THING.

Written in response to a request for a book dealing with the "conversion of ordinary people, respectable men and women." Unlike his earlier books, only a small proportion of its contents was gained from personal experience. The author has drawn largely upon the records of the Y. M. C. A. of England, so that the book is practically an exposition of the work carried on by that institution.

—248 B390
CORBIN. ROMANCE OF SUBMARINE ENGINEERING.

Interesting, untechnical descriptions of the methods and apparatus now in use by divers, submarine and semi-submarine boats, docks, under-water tunnels, cables, and other under-water work. Well illustrated.

Details of the author's personal experience of cameras, lenses and plates, time of exposure, etc., and experience in securing artistic outdoor pictures. A very useful book for those who have some basis of theory and practice, written by a man of wide and successful experience.

—770 D59
PARTRIDGE. PSYCHOLOGY OF INTemperance.

A well presented study of the history of intemperance, tracing its history and effect on animals and among primitive and civilized peoples. The conclusion reached is that the causes of intoxication are largely social. The last fifth of the book takes up intemperance as an individual and social problem, considering methods for the care and control of the drunkard.

—178 P25
RAUSCHENBUSCH. CHRISTIANIZING THE SOCIAL ORDER.

An appeal to the social conscience of the churches for cooperation in reorganizing on a Christian basis the modern industrial system. This convincing and constructive work not only deals fearlessly with present evils but suggests a carefully thought out program for the "conservation of life," which embraces justice, approximate equality, collective property and cooperation, but it is not really socialism. An impressive sequel to "Christianity and the social crisis."

—261 R198
TARBELL. BUSINESS OF BEING A WOMAN.

A sane and earnest plea for the realization of the unique social and economical opportunity of the woman in the home, as educator, enlightened consumer, center of social life, etc. Reprinted from the American magazine.

SHUBERT

"The Firefly," a comic opera in a prologue and two acts, was produced for the first time in Boston at the Shubert theatre on Monday evening. The whole play is practically a vehicle for Emma Trentini, but the side lights include several pretty love affairs. Miss Trentini dominates the entire comedy however and is as pleasing as ever.

Douglas Fairbanks is appearing at the Colonial in the title role in "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.," and gives a splendid impersonation of a lively young American who believes in the motto, "Be sure you are right, then go ahead."

HOLLIS STREET

MAJESTIC

"Ready Money" is being presented at the Majestic this week, and its popularity has followed it from the Shubert where it had a successful run.

PARK

"Officer 666" is still continuing its popularity at the Park theatre, where the spectators are enjoying the discomfiture of the policeman, the cleverness of the picture crook and the sangfroid of the millionaire.

PLYMOUTH

The Irish Players are repeating their former success in Boston in their present engagement at the Plymouth theatre, and are presenting new plays together with old favorites. "Here is no acting but life itself," said a noted critic in his expression of the Irish Players, who on next Monday begin the third and second last week of their engagement at the Plymouth theatre, Boston.

Those who have witnessed the extraordinary versatility of this unique organization can readily grasp the verity of this remark. In fact no truer words have yet been spoken of this wonderful band of players.

Since the first American performances of this organization of players last year, the fame of their achievements in this country has become a matter of household knowledge. These players, unlike the American actors, ignore all stage traditions with amazing and effective impression. They thrill you from the moment the curtain rises. The realistic climaxes of every performance stamp a vivid and indelible picture upon your mind. They present the most grippingly human effects the American stage has ever offered and carry you with them in their strikingly faithful interpretations. If you are a lover of natural acting combined with dramatic surprises you will do well not to miss seeing them. The bill for the coming week will be the most interesting of the entire repertoire. Don't miss the opportunity of a lifetime. Send in your order for seats right now. Make your check payable to Fred E. Wright, Plymouth Theatre, Boston.

BOSTON

As those who have gone for fresh scenes and adventure to a life in the far west, have been fascinated by the outdoor life of perpetual and hazardous excitement amid wild surroundings, so all Boston has been held almost spellbound with a strange fascination at the thrilling scenes of Western life brought to their door so to speak, in the graphic pictures presented in Klaw and Erlanger's massive production of "The Round Up."

It is the vivid reproduction of scenes in which Indians, cowboys, ranchmen, cavalymen, venturesome western men and women and dozens of bronchos are concerned, which so many have read about but which so few have actually seen, that have made "The Round Up" so absorbingly interesting to the vast city public and to crowds from many neighboring towns and an object of wonderment in the marvelous scenic presentation of the desert plains and canyons and the vivid and almost terrifying realism of its famous battle scene. The ringing cheers of the vast audience at this scene is a tribute to the masterly stagecraft of this stupendous spectacle. Over 200,000 persons have already witnessed it and there is no abatement in the heavy demand for seats in advance.
